If there is anything a Radical bates worse than he hates a rebel it is an Irish-man. How can an Irishman be a Radi-cal nuless he first trains as an Orangeman and a Know-Nothing? The Commercial boasts that a Demo-crat was permitted to say a few words to a Republican meeting in the Ninth ward. Let any Radical read its own report of the creatment Mr. Harmmoron received, and then boast if he can. The Commercial asks why we are abus-ing "cherished Know-Nothing pets?" We have retused to indores the present or past politics of Wansworth, Goodlon and the other Know-Nothing leaders of the Ken-tucky Radicals, but we have not abused that of a disorganiser, who has invariably given precedence to his own appetite for diffice over the success of Democratic principles and the integrity of the Democratic party. It was only for a brief period and while he hoped to control the Democratic convention that he manifested a hetter disposition. When he hoped to gain thereby the nomination and the united support of the Democratic party he pledged himself in a published letter and authorised his triends in the convention to pledge him by resolution to support the nomines. But his subsequent conduct showed that he was determined to defeat the convention's nomination it he could not control it. He boildly broke his promise, and even exposed his triends to susprion, by disregarding the promises he had authorised them to make for him. This course was openly encouraged but secretly despised by the Radicala. Although they profess to care listle about politics in this race, they could not support as an independent candidate a man who had defied all restraints and placed himself in such an awkward position before the rubble. And wit to reverse, his own. had defied all restraints and placed him-selt is such an awkward position before the public. And yet, to reverge his own personal disappointment, Mr. Conn is using the remnant of his personal influ-ence to secure the election of the Radical candidate. We wish our opponents joy As a sample of the American Press Association's departness and an example of their general reliability we city the following from a Northern paper.

Senates Exputs, according to a departness from a second of the ependent, but finally concludes to fool nem both and vote the Radical ticket.

candidate. We wish our opponents joy over their acquisition.

Show Your Hands.

It is known that Mears, Human, Bo-LAND, BARRD, and perhaps other Radical candidates have joined the order of Good Templars. If they did this only to keep themselves sober it is a praiseworthy act which no man can condemn. But if they have committed themselves to the policy of enforcing total abstinence upon every-body else the public ought to know it. All over the North the union of the Good Templars with the Loyal League means something more than heavy taxation of beer, Sunday laws, and other restrictions upon ordinary drinking. It means the absolute prohibition of the liquor traffic. It denounces heer gardens as haunts of brutafity and seminaries of crime. Having this meaning everywhere else, in antiopritative explanation of its political significance in this locality assumes considerable importance. When gentlemen are put torward with puffs from the organ of the prohibitionists, when the Puritanical sentiments of the community are continually appealed to in their behalf, it is time to recognize the fact that there are two sides to this question. These gentlemen have no right to run on the Prussian question in the beer gardens, and run on the liquor question in the Good Templars and in the Young Men's Christian Association. It isn't fair. If they are promising one side to employ the influence and prominence they aspire to sgalmat the personal liberty of the citizen, the other ande ought to know it. We hope they will not get the Commercial to explain, their positions for them to state it will not be at all satisfactory. They know their own positions on the liquor law question, and It's to easy for them to state it There is nothing very original in the plot, but the moral is evidently in keeping with the teachings which Radicals impart to ever it make about actitudes and i ennes-see affairs. Here is its last.

The Frankfort Commonwealth, one of the Democraticest Democratic paper of Kentucky, charges the Democratic administration of that state with "violations of the state Constitution," "increase of the State debt, "sammyluon in State auministration," "signistive rotating in times of papers copy and send bill."

The Frankfort Comminwealth is a Rad. their own positions on the liquor law ques-tion, and it is to easy for them to state it over their own signatures. Let them do The Frankfort Commonwealth is a Rad-

The Commercial publishes a communication of eight numbered paragraphs on the subject of "ROBERT BAIRD, His Morsha" Let it be remembered that we have not said a word against "Robert Baird, His Morsha" But it, as the communication concedes, the excitement and nervous exhaustion of criminal practice renders it not at all wonderful "that a criminal lawyer may be sometimes involved in a spree," we would suggest that it is cruel to expose Mr. B. again to the bad influences of the Police Court: The Negre Vete.

The Radicals are much distressed about Democratic bilds for negro vetes. They need not be alarmed. Democrats are not in the habit of premising negrees what they are unable and do not intend to perform. They cannot compete in the matter of promises, and they do not need the votes. What the Radicals call bilds are only the regrets expressed by the disinterested iriends of the negro, when they see him stupidly and fruitlessly bringing down upon himself and upon all the hopes of his racs the overwhelming prejudices that stand embattled against Radicalism in Kentucky. These prejudices belong not to angelle nature, but, in this erring world, they are stubborn and durable facts. It was the Democratic siffliction of our naturalized citizens that run the Whig The Negro Vote. The Commercial is indignant because a Democratic meeting retised to listen while a partisan of T. JACK CONN'S denounced he Democratic Convention as "a sink of ribery," and themselves as "the hirelings our naturalized citizens that run the Whig party crasy and set it to work as a Know-Nothing party assigns the Nothing party against the foreigner. The Radical party would never have entran-chised the negro to vote the Democratic-ticket. Fut he is enfranchised in spite of the opposition of Kentucky Radicals, and the right to vote is but a transl and a fatal same it he cannot exercise it tigs he own the right to vote is but a trand and a fatal snare if he cannot exercise it fog his own protection and advancement. What more can the Radicais do for him in this Biate? What can he do for himself by voting at all, when he will only enable his enemies to show by the election returns that he has east in his lot with a powerless and despised party that has no hope of fature influence in Kentucky, and exists only for the absorption of Federal subsidies? There is not an enemy of the negro race in Kentucky who would have them stay away from the poils or cast anything but a solid Radical yote, and the larger that yote is the better for those who desire to The Radical candidate for attorney, while speaking to a crowd the other night, drew his pistel on a man who called him anangero. There is no insult which a white Radical will reasent so fercely as a hint vote is the better for those who desire to about the sympathies of the Democrats in the European war. The same game the Radicals are now playing on German sympathies they played on the sympathies of the Irish while Jourson was President, and during the late Presidential election. But with all their bullying, all their denunciation of England, all their own grievances against that country, we see how the Radicals in power have sustained the Fenian cause. The Germans are too shrewd not to guess how much real sympathy for Prussia there is behind this electioneering lip service offered by the Radicals.

But one week more remains to the work of railying the full strength of the conservative sentiment against the collusive efforts of bolters and Radicals. The election of a single one of the latter would have a bad effect upon the external influence and interests of the city. Are the people leaving the work entirely to the candidates and the committees. Are the committees and the candidates holding consultations and acting in concert? There is no time to lose in idle talk. Active and united operations, insuring, a compicte route along the enemy's entire line and the dispersion of his independent guerrilla bands, are of the utmost importance to the Democracy of Louisville and to the city itself.

The Radicals have no hope of electing a candidate in this contest except what is based upon a diversion of Democratic LEF The business of running blockades is reduced to an art me England, and is thoroughly understood there. Vessels are built expressly to run blockades, no expense being post upon their internal arrangements and fitting up, beyond the safety of cargo and the management of the engines of great speed. These vessels are, in sach, more iron shells, and the loss of one of them would not be seriously felt by her owners. The calculation usually is that the profit on the cargo more than pays for the vessel. It is possible that the emergencies of the war may create an immesse demand both in Prussis and France tor iron, and that the price of iron everywhere may rise in consequence. In that case the shipments of Brittish iron to the United States would fall off heavily, in consquence of the greater chances of profit offered by the markets of Europe. JACKSON, July 16, 1870.

Hon. A. H. Signhess:

Dass Size: I have cheerfully compiled with your request to publish your letter, and also the extract itclosed, from your forthcoming (3d) vo mus.

Finding in a newspaper published in your State, what purported to be a sketch authorized by you, of your work, on the subject alluded to, I reasonably inferred that you had been and public speculity of the state of t hair, delicate hands, tiny feet, and shapely limbs. Beautiful in death is she, though the sahen bur is spreading over her white skin, and the shrunken eye has lost the fire that lighted it. The dripping apparel that hangs above the corpies was hers. She came from the river—hauled rudely forth by those who relocate the fraint of history," did not rest with relocate the fraint of history," did not rest with meaning the fire of the living, you see.

The dead thus fursuch bread for the living, you see.

THE SECRETS OF DEATH.

But who is she that is so lovely in death that we forget to fear the destroyer in admirable of his rivends, has maintained a strict that we forget to fear the destroyer in admirable of his rivends, has maintained a strict read of his rivends, has maintained a strict lices since the close, but whose fame never-heldes is the property of his countrymen, and what the advertisaments also but received. is especially user to use proper as a special which you have inclosed that you were misreported by the Augusta Constitutionalist, but I regret to find that the issue is changed from the statement that President Dayls prevented the Const-densite troops from following the enemy directly into Washington City from the battle-field, to a statement that three mooths thereafter, the fruits of the victory, which had then passed into history, were not respect by the Generals in consequence of his disapproval.

Candor compels me respectfully to dissent from your opinion that there is "no error, in the statement as it stands in the book, nor discrepancy between it and the facts brught to light by the correspondence." Your fansuggeouveys meaning, when yarms trusthe statement of Gen, Johnston. The extract produces the impression that the President disapproved the policy of activity and as advance movement, when in truth he favored such plan, and it was not carried out because of the seasonist by the Generale contrasted with command. In reply to his inquiry whether he had prevented the troops from following up the rout at Manssans, General Johnston waswered, "No." And in reply to his inquiry whether whe had ever objected to an advance or other active operations which it was resable for fifth areny to undertake," Gen. Johnston replied: "It has never been fessible for the army or advance further than Court Hones with the three senior Generals, you announced it to be impracticable to give the army the strength necessary to assume the offensive." This letter was dated the first of Workenber of the full in the "early part" of which you report that President Davis. overnied their purpose to advance on Washington. It does not suborize the attensent or warrant the inference that they swen advised an advance movement, much has does it ship for the report that they are advised an advance movement, much has does it ship for the way unable to furnish the troops thought by the senior Generals to be necessary for a movement, it made, against their main force, because be

It this instance I thick you will readily admit there is no error in the classemen is it atands in the book. There is certainty not the alightest inconsistency or discrepancy between it and any fact brought to light by the correspondence your published, for the first time, between President Davis and Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. The facts in this instance, as in all others, as I understand them, are tractifyed in law states them, and so I think you will fluid them to be upon close examination and full investigation.

Of one thing you may rest assured, the great object with me throughout the work was the vindication of the truth of history; and if it be shown that I have failen into error upon any point, however small orminos, it will be most cheerfully corrected in all subsequent estitors.
